Double Down FAQs

What is Double Down? Double Down is a televised half-hour weekly game show for teams of high school students from WCNY's 19-county viewing area. Teams of students in grades 9-12 compete in matches that consist of four rounds, answering questions on a variety of topics. Double Down spotlights students who are academic achievers and provides an entertaining and educational television experience for viewers of all ages.

How is the show made? To make the show fun and competitive for the participants, as well as visually entertaining for television viewers, each show is recorded without interruption in the television studios at WCNY. Actual recording of each match takes approximately a half-hour, with as many as three Double Down shows produced daily. There is no live studio audience for Double Down shows, so school advisors and chaperones are welcome to attend but will be seated in another WCNY location to watch the competition taking place in the studio.

What topic categories are covered in the competition?

- English Language Arts/Literature (famous authors, books, plays, language, grammar skills. . .)
- History/Geography (important events, famous people, historic dates, places. . .)
- Science (biology, earth science, chemistry, and some physics. . .)
- Math (algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and some calculus. . .)
- Arts (famous artists/composers/musicians, famous works of art/compositions, genres of art/music, art techniques, musical theory. . .)
- 2018 (people, places and events that made or are making the news in 2018)
- Sports (game rules, current major sports champions, all-time major sport history. . .)

Who develops the questions? Questions are created by a panel of educators and WCNY's Double Down team.

How are questions asked? The host reads the questions from cue cards and questions are visually displayed for the contestants (except during the Lightning Round) and viewing audience. Some questions also have images, sound, and/or video clips as cues.

How are questions judged? One or more judges monitor the competition from the control room. All decisions of the judges are final.

How are teams selected and prepared? Double Down team advisors at each school may select team members as they see fit and name up to five students on the roster submitted to WCNY via the Team Roster Form. Once the Team Roster Form has been submitted, only those students whose names appear on the roster may compete throughout the season. While only three students may actively participate for any one match, the school's five person team may rotate throughout the season as necessary. No practice should be required for the students to answer questions on the show. Some advisors choose to have a club based on participation and/or to combine Double Down with another school activity and group of students, but that is up to the advisor/school.

How do teams advance in Double Down? The 16 teams with the highest scores from Qualifying Day advance to the Double Down Competition. Double Down matches are played in head-to-head, single elimination format. Losing teams are out of the competition. See the Double Down Game Format & Rules section for more information.

How many times will teams have to travel to WCNY to compete? - 3 times- Including the Qualifying Day, the maximum number of times a team would have to travel to WCNY to compete in Double Down is three.

Double Down Game Format & Rules

QUALIFYING DAY | Open to all registered teams

TIME 2 minutes

- Teams answer as many questions as possible in 2 minutes, earning points for each correct answer. Points are not deducted for wrong answers.
- The 16 top-scoring teams move on to the Double Down Competition

DOUBLE DOWN COMPETITION | Open to the top 16 teams from the Qualifying Day

Double Down is conducted in four rounds, each with its own style of questioning. Points accumulate throughout the four rounds.

Round One: Twenty Questions

TIME approx. 8 minutes

- 20 questions, each worth 10 points.
- No penalty for wrong answer.
- Questions are for individual players only.
- Questioning alternates between the participating teams.

Round Two: Double Down

TIME approx. 10 minutes

- Each opening question is worth 20 points.
- One student is questioned, but teams decide their response as a group. The questioning rotates team-by-team.
- A correct answer allows the team the opportunity to “double down” and choose to take a second (more difficult) question to answer. Teams decide as a group whether to double down. Answering the double down question correctly earns double points (40 pts.) but incorrect answers cost the team 20 points. Each team has a maximum of three Double Down opportunities.

Round Three: Lightning Round

TIME approx. 45 seconds

- Each question worth 10 points.
- No penalty for wrong answers or passed questions.
- Team members may consult one another but will need to choose a designated responder.

Final Round

TIME approx. 4 minutes

- A final Double Down category is announced. Teams indicate how many points they are willing to wager on an electronic screen.
- The host reads one final question which is displayed for the teams and viewing audience.
- Each team discusses their answer and their captain writes the answer on an electronic screen that is hidden from view.
- Starting with the team with fewer points, the host displays each team’s answer and the points wagered to calculate the team’s final score.
- The team with the most points at the end of the Final Round is the winner.

Tiebreaker

In the event that the Final Round ends in a tie, the team that missed the fewest questions throughout the entire game will be declared the winner. If there is still a tie, the team that answered the most Second Round questions correctly will be declared the winner. If there is still a tie, the team that answered the most First Round questions correctly will be declared the winner. If there is still a tie, a “one question shoot-out” question will be issued to both teams. The team whose response is closest to the correct answer will be declared the winner.
