Meet Artists Across the Region

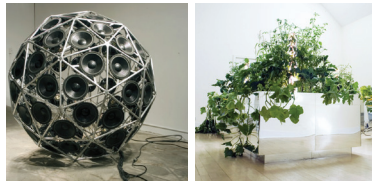

Sam Van Aken, Syracuse
samvanaken.com

Specialty: Sculptor

Inspiration: Sam's art combines sophisticated technology with traditional modes of art-making. His projects cross boundaries between artistic genres, including performance, installation, video, photography, and sculpture. With each body of work, he selects practices and new perspectives that provide a kinesthetic perception of objects and a visceral charge. His "Tree of 40 Fruits" utilizes the botanic science of grafting to produce real hybridized fruit trees.

This single tree grows 40 types of edible fruit!

Tom Hussey, Auburn
tomhusseyart.com

Specialty: Artist

Inspiration: Tom's favorite subjects include the hills and streams of Central New York and the beaches and harbors of the Atlantic Coast. French painter Jean Baptiste Camille Corot and American Winslow Homer are among primary influences. Life in the Finger Lakes and its terrain richness and atmospheric conditions, are what Tom enjoys most.

Graham Ottoson, Ithaca
gourdlandia.com

Specialty: Artist | Gourd Making

Inspiration: Graham's artwork is inspired by and dependent on the garden that surrounds his studio, where the gourds grow! A well-grown and dried gourd develops a wood-like structure, perfect for making bowls, vases, piggy banks, purses, clocks, and masks. He enjoys making lamps the most, using a variety of rotary tools and a mini jigsaw to create patterns in the hard shell of the gourd. Designs are inspired by the internal vein structure that develops as the gourd grows.

Kamiiron Pritchard, Syracuse

He continues to express his love of comics through oil paintings. Jordan Dudden, Formerly of Syracuse jojorings.com

Specialty: Repurposed Jewelry Designer
Inspiration: Jordan took an elective jewelry and metalsmithing class at Syracuse University where she handcrafted the first-ever JoJo Ring with a key from her late Grandmother's house. It serves as a constant reminder to laugh and love. Jordan started making rings for friends and family, and discovered her rings had an impact on people. Fans sent keys to their first car or first apartment. JoJo Rings has upcycled 2,400 pounds of recycled brass.

David MacDonald, Syracuse
davidmacdonaldpottery.com

Specialty: Ceramist
Inspiration: David focuses on the articulation of the magnificence and nobility of the human spirit; and a celebration of his African heritage. David uses clay as the primary vehicle for expression. Clay represents unique social and spiritual connections and associations, to all people, that do not exist in non-vessel ceramic forms. The nature of the art experience for David is one of self-discovery and communication.

Patience Brewster, Skaneateles
patiencebrewster.com

Specialty: Whimsical Illustrator | Ornament Design
Inspiration: Patience has always been fascinated by the relationships between humans, animals, insects and objects. Early in her career she illustrated 35 children's books, of which she wrote four. She created images for numerous stationery and gift manufacturers, but found a puzzling resistance to licensing the art that she felt defined her. In 2002 she created her own stationery company with that very art and started designing and manufacturing handmade ornaments, fabrics and ceramics.

Smock, Syracuse
smockpaper.com

Specialty: Invitation Design and Stationery
Inspiration: Smock is an inspired line of custom invitations and everyday stationery essentials, including letterpress greeting cards, gift wrap, keepsake boxes, notebooks, coasters, and more. Products are sustainably printed in Syracuse featuring vibrant patterns and shiny foil stamped accents. Inspiration stems from watercolor paintings, organic patterns, and modern minimalism.

Phil McAndrew, Oswego
philintheblanks.com

Specialty: Illustrator
Inspiration: Phil is inspired by the good stuff: love and compassion, cool plants and animals, rock and roll, and waterslides. He tries to find humor and absurdity, and ignores the bad stuff: horror and hypocrisy.

Cynthia Clabough, Oswego
oswego.edu/art/clabough.com

Specialty: Mixed Media Artist
Inspiration: Since early childhood Cynthia has tried to comprehend the world around her by working it all out visually. She uses the process of creating for self-healing and meditation. Trained as a painter, she enjoys the building up of a surface through layering, while working with digital technologies to layer materials that are difficult to meld physically.
