

The lost Princess.

Emily

In a kingdom far away there lived a king and queen. One day they had a child. Her brown hair shimmered and her brown eyes glittered. They braided her hair with dark red ribbons and tied it with one. Then they gave her a dark red dress.

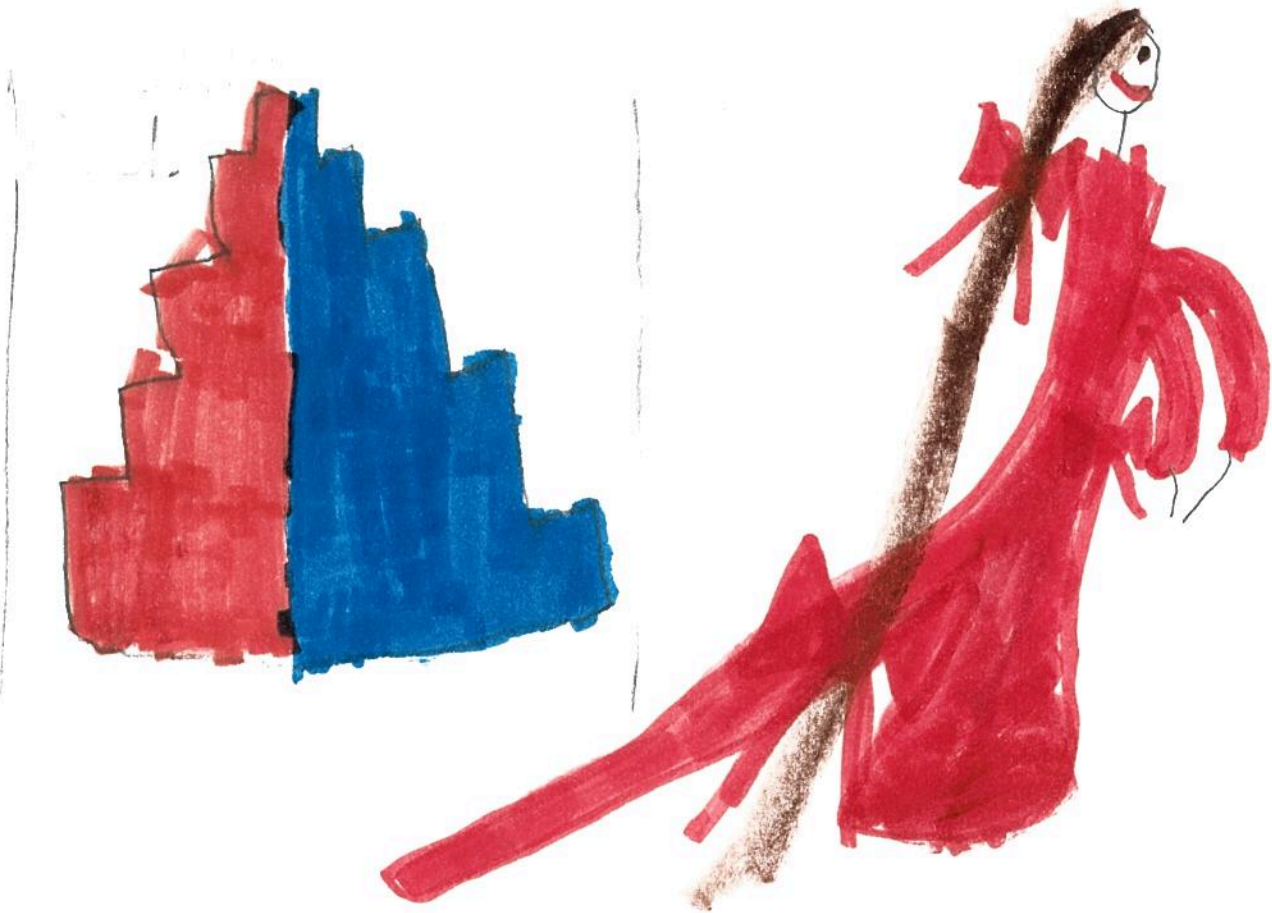

The next day they went on a boat ride. Suddenly a bad storm set in. The parents survived but the child was lost at sea. While she was lost at sea she found out something about her. She was half human half mermaid. When she was a mermaid she looked exactly the same except she had a dark red mermaid tail.

Many years later the girl found her home. Her father had died so it was her and her mom. They had a mom and daughter reunion. Then one day a prince from a foreign land came. He wanted to marry the princess. When he asked her she said yes.

The next week there was a wedding, so many people came that everyone who came had to bring chairs. The princess had a sparkling red dress with a train with her hair left down. There was a big cake. Half was dark red and the other was dark blue.

After the wedding they moved into a red castle. On the inside the princess' half was red and the prince's half was blue. The mom moved in with the princess' parents. And the prince and princess lived happily ever after.
